From email to personal banking to health apps, we're increasingly using our mobile devices to help us manage our day-to-day lives. RFID, Bluetooth, Wireless and so on, but are you aware of the so-called NFC?

WHAT IS NFC ?

NFC (Near Field Communication) is what enables two devices to communicate wirelessly when they're close together. NFC is actually a subset of something called RFID (Radio-Frequency Identification), a technology that allows us to identify things through radio waves.

To date, one of the more common uses for NFC is identification cards to gain access to places like office buildings and private garages. But increasingly, NFC is being used to power something called "contactless" payments.

THINK GREEN? GO WITH BAMBOO

A highly sustainable material called Bamboo is the fastest growing planet. A member of the grass family, bamboo is known for tall hollow stems that reach their full height in just one growing season.

Long Lasting

Durable

Anti-bacterial

Bamboo is both flexible and elastic. As a result items made from bamboo tend to be very resilient and resist breaking when placed under stress. Bamboo does not have rays or knots the way wood does, this means that stress applied to the bamboo is evenly distributed over the surface.

FUN FACTS!

Did you know...

Alexander Graham Bell made use of bamboo for his first phonograph needle?

Thomas Edison successfully used a carbonized bamboo filament in his experiment with the first light bulb.

According to Japanese scientists, bamboo cloth can retain its antibacterial quality even after 50 washings.

WHAT IS WHEAT STRAW MATERIAL?

Wheat straw is the stalk left over after wheat grains are harvested. Traditionally, it has been treated as a waste. In some countries, farmers burn it, contributing to air pollution and creating a public health hazard. However, these stalks still have value. We reclaim this material and use it to make our wheat straw products.

By using wheat straw in our products, we are diverting material from the waste stream and using a reclaimed resource to make durable, lightweight, and compostable packaging.

Description:

Push Eco Pen with Clip made of Wheat Straw Material. With Blue Ink.

WHAT IS WHEAT STRAW MATERIAL?

Wheat straw is the stalk left over after wheat grains are harvested. Traditionally, it has been treated as a waste. In some countries, farmers burn it, contributing to air pollution and creating a public health hazard. However, these stalks still have value. We reclaim this material and use it to make our wheat straw products.

By using wheat straw in our products, we are diverting material from the waste stream and using a reclaimed resource to make durable, lightweight, and compostable packaging.

What is BPA? Why is it Bad for you?

BPA (bisphenol A) is a chemical that is added to many commercial products, including food containers and hygiene products.

BPA is a synthetic compound found in many plastics, as well as in the lining of canned food containers.

When BPA containers are made, not all of the BPA gets sealed into the product. This allows part of it to break free and mix with the container's contents once food or fluids are added.

In addition, BPA may also interact with other hormone receptors, such as those for your thyroid, thus altering their function.
